Subject: Letter of Recommendation for Jonathan Hendrix López

For two years I served as the Site Manager of the US Air Base at Moron AB, Spain. These were dynamic times with many international support requirements and the war in Libya. I had almost daily contact with Jonathan during this period and saw him in action during really challenging times with tough demands on his Fuels Division.

He is a Fuels Administrator expert. His Division pumped the second most fuel in the entire Department of Defense Fuels System in the world in 2011. His duties covered bringing million of gallons of fuels from the DLA Fuel Farms into the Base and distributing it to the Moron Storage Facilities. Then he oversaw transporting the fuel to underground systems on the Flight Line and into tanker trucks to refuel real-time aircraft missions to support 30 to 50 flights a day. His management and leadership skills were apparent in leading his Division daily. Interfacing with both Spanish, USAF and Civilians was handled with skill and promoted strong teamwork.

Jonathan stood out amongst his peers. He is a “can-do” individual whose quick mind is always working ahead to resolve problems and keep the tough daily requirements on track. He is versed in all aspects of Fuel Management and can be trusted to make the right decisions. The requirements for Fuel Management are based on complex computer models and accounting—here again, his outstanding skills with computer systems and technology exemplify his abilities.

Again, for over two years I saw Jonathan in action at all hours of day and night and many weekends at times of tremendous responsibility—he is a truly outstanding person whose abilities are almost “unlimited.”

It is a pleasure for me to recommend him.
